I've got hold of an old Sun DGA-1800 gas analyser from an MOT station that closed years ago, but it won't give a reading because it's out of calibration. Each time it's calibrated, the "expiry date" is changed so that a proper MOT station won't be using a machine that hasn't been calibrated, but I'm not bothered about that - I just want an idea of whether my car might pass or fail before I take it in.

I have a Sun DGA-1800 Gas analyser. It won't display a gas reading because the gas calibration has drifted sufficiently that it needs attention. The Snap-on technician suggested that would be difficult to arrange, I'm not sure whether that's just generally difficult, or whether he'd picked up on my reluctance to pay anything. The former, I think.
